NexValue Financial — AML & KYC Procedures

Internal use only · Effective January 2026

Procedures for anti-money laundering controls and know-your-customer verification across retail and corporate banking.

1. Purpose

NexValue Financial must verify customer identity, assess money-laundering risk, and maintain records in line with regulatory obligations. These procedures apply to all onboarding and periodic review activities.

2. Required KYC Documents

The following documents are required for customer due diligence:

Customer type	Required documents	Verification
Retail individual	Government ID, proof of address, tax ID	In-branch or digital IDV
SME business	Certificate of incorporation, UBO register, director IDs	Enhanced review if >25% foreign ownership
Corporate	Board resolution, beneficial ownership chart, audited accounts	Relationship manager sign-off

3. Enhanced Due Diligence Triggers

Enhanced due diligence (EDD) is required when a customer is classified as high-risk, operates in a high-risk jurisdiction, is a politically exposed person (PEP), or shows unusual transaction patterns. EDD includes source-of-funds verification, senior management approval, and quarterly review.
